They have been an infernal nuisance from David's gling to America's Hydrogen-boomb; but never before have they entitled a subject of the Hydrogen-boomb; but never before have they amilten so fearfully the fishes of the sea, so that Japanese fishermen, themselves vexed by a mysterious item between the paid for no doubt; but the paid for no doubt; but the price is rising steeply and who knows what will be exacted by the newest and biggest of the H-boombs when it is tested in the Pacific next month?

THE parallel has, of course, a different background. There is no love lost between Israel and the Arab States and the armaments conflict is part of a general condition of hostility. Fundamentally there is not much love lost between Germany and France but in practice France and West Germany are at peace and, at least at government level, are trying to be good neighbours. The difficulty comes from the fact that France feels an unarmed Germany likely to be a better neighbour than an armed Germany, while Germany way, even some of the traditional neutrals; and, of course, for that we have to thank Germany, armament is what matters when it comes to the point.

It is a lesson other nations took very seriously to heart; and one consequence of which is that Tokyo housewives are refluctant to buy fish in the markets, for fear that they may be radio-active. For the H-bomb is a direct eutcome of the lessons taught during 1914-18 and 1939-45 when nations preferring peace were driven into war by the Germans and compelled to suffer years of horror and destruction before being able to match the armaments of Germany. From all accounts, the lessons these learned are now being applied to meet a potential threat from another sourcefrom Russia instead of from Germany; but, quite naturally, no Frenchman, Pole or Czech living along Germany's frontiers is yet ready to exclude the possibility of another German aggression one day.

Fourth Protest

WASHINGTON, Sunday.

The delegates to the First International Bond Conference at the closing assiston today adopted a resolution pledging "devotion, comradeship, and resources to the people of Israel in their struggle to preserve freedom."

Then one community leader after another arose to make a firm commitment for the sale of Development Bonds this year far exceeding the expectations of the national leaders.

Responding to the urgent need for Israel Bond funds, leaders from communities throughout the country announced the decisions of their cities to set quotas in the drive to sell $75m. in Bonds this year,

Among those making such announcements were: Los Angeles, $3.5m., Chicago, $2.5m., Philadelphia, $2m., Boston, $2m., and Newark, $1.5m.

Were it not for the recession, which has not yet affected many communities but which, as told me today by economist Robert R. Nathan, will get much worse before it gets better, one might predict that Bond sales will approach this year's goal of $75m., exceeding the annual sales of the Independence issue. The cash revenue of the latter for three years is almost $150m.

On the other hand, Mr. Leon H. Keyserling, who served as Chairman of President Truman's Economic Advisory Council, told the delegates today that American output in 1964 would be only 5% less than in 1963 and that the recession would not become a depression.

The condition of the American economy is therefore "irrelevant to the success of Israel campaigns and we can do any job we want to."

Senator Homer Ferguson, Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, repeated Senator Robert Tati's pledge to last year's Bond Conference of American aid to Israel to "build a bulwark against Communism" in the Middle East.

Senator Forguson also reiterated the statement in President Elisenbower's 1952 campaign speech that "every encouragement should be given to facilitate direct negotiations between Israel and her Arab neighbours.

A Soviet note to Pakistan last November disapproved her "joining in plans for setting up an aggressive military block in the Middle East.

This was the fourth Soviet protest announced as having been made in the past fortnight.

Two days earlier, Russia had sent an opposition note to Turkey on her alleged moves towards creation of a "Pro. Western bloc."

On March 18, a Soviet note was delivered to Holland against the establishment of American bases on Dutch territory in peace-time.

Rabbi Irving Miller, Chairman of the American Zionist Council, addressing the Bond Conference last night, said that he wished to express assurance to his fellow Jews in Israel, in connection with the current crisis that 'you shall not stand alone and we shall not fail you, for your struggle is ours and your triumph will be a victory for freedom and dignity everywhere."

Rabbi Miller questioned the attitude of the American U.N. delegation towards Jordan's failure to obey the U.N.'s request that it meet with Israel for Article 12 talks.

Workers' Strikes

Back Nasser Textile workers struck today, joining transport and printing workers who went on strike yesterday, the radio reported. They are demanding that the Revolution Council remain in power until the last British soldier has been evacuated from the Canal Zone.

The General Syndicate of Engine Drivers in a broadcast over Cairo Radio stated that all trains in Egypt would stop at midnight tonight until the following requests by the people were answered:

1) The restoration of parties will not be permitted;

2) The Revolution Council to continue to exercise its power until the evacuation of imperialism is completed.

3) A National Assembly to be established at the side of the Revolution Council and to be composed of representatives of all syndicates, trade unions and associations, to which decisions passed by the Council would be submitted, and

VISITORS' GALLERY Earl Balfour

ARTHUR James Balfour, the Balfour Declaration which proclaimed the imminent enfranchisement of the Jewish people as a nation, had a deep faith in the destiny of the Jewish people and a passionate desire for an act of justice towards them. This faith did not have repercussions in Whitehall and Westminster alone. It was a constant preoccupation of the whole Balfour family according to Robert Arthur Lytton Balfour, the third Earl and nephew of A.J. Balfour who with Lady Balfour, is at present touring Israel. "I have siways been a Zionist, I think," he told me last week "One heard so much about it in the family," week "One heard so much about it in the family."

It will be recalled that in 1939, when the need to rescue Jewish children from Germany was so terribly urgent, the seat of the Balfour family at Whittingehame in Scotland was thrown open to 170 Jewish boys and girls from Germany. They were schooled and cared for there and the present Countess of Balfour, for a period during the war even assumed the role of headmistress of the school acting as a kind of mother to the large family. The Earl and Countess hope while in Israel to see many of their former guests. They will make a special visit to Kibbutz Lave in Lower Galliee which many of their wards helped to establish five years ago.

The present Earl is an industrialist and is managing director of Brunton's Wire Mills. The firm and its subsidiary have agents in Haifa and Tel Aviv whom Earl Balfour will visit, but his main purpose here is to see the work of youth Aliya in which both he and the Countess are active workers in Britain. During the Second World War, the Earl of Balfour for a time commanded an antisubmarine vessel but later was asked to act as regional Fuel Controller for Scotland. He subsequently became head of the Scottish Division of the National Coal Board.
